Watching France through the prism of diversity, Rokhaya Diallo investigates on the ground to find out whether 'diversity' is a reality or just a cliché. Her aim is to monitor progress...or regression, look at contradictions but also at the potential for stronger acceptance and greater integration of differences in society for the future..
"Equal but not too much" challenges the boundaries of accepted ideas of "diversity" by meeting concerned citizens face to face in their daily environment and by offering investigative reports on topical issues.
