CHILDREN OF JIHAD, TICKING TIME BOMBS

Director(s): Dorothée LEPINE, Seamus HALEY

Writer(s): Dorothée LEPINE, Edith BOUVIER

As battle rages in Syria and the territories once occupied by IS, the question on everyone's mind is: what about the children of foreign fighters?

Whether they were brought to the "caliphate" as minors or were born there, who will take care of them if their parents are killed in combat? Are our Western democracies prepared for their return?

THE PRESS:

"..... terrifying stories of children and adolescents torn from the hell of war, then taken 'home' to a country they have never seen or, sometimes, thrown into prison, suspected of complicity...". - Emilie Gavoille (Télérama - 27/09/2017)

"Young girls and boys, forcibly recruited by the jihadist group,describe their ordeal with sometimes startling detachment ... Setting out in Kurdistan, this remarkable and chilling investigation by Dorothée Lépine and Seamus Haley concludes in France".
