AFGHANISTAN, THE PRICE OF REVENGE

Director(s): Alberto MARQUARDT

Writer(s): Alberto MARQUARDT, Eric DE LAVARENE

In October 2001 the United States launched the war against Afghanistan, with the whole world by its side, in an act of self-defence after the attacks of 9/11. By the end of 2014, most combat troops of the international coalition would be leaving. Over 3000 soldiers were lost in combat. The U.S. and their allies leave behind a country on the brink of civil war and bloodshed...

The official rhetoric has not stood up to the stark reality on the ground. Bin Laden? Found and killed...elsewhere, in Pakistan. The fate of Afghan women? An excuse to sell this war to public opinion.

All parties to the conflict - members of the American secret service, commanders of U.S. armed forces, Taliban officials, Afghan warlords and tribal leaders, UN negotiators, Pakistani leaders and secret service, NGO officials - give their view and unravel the tangled web of a war that had no other motive than America's thirst for revenge. For eleven years, Western democracies promised Afghanistan a better future... only to leave the country in a state of wide-spread corruption, disillusion, with thousands of lives lost and the Taliban more powerful than ever.

Afghanistan was the ideal target. It has become a volcano...
