

ALTHUSSER, AN INTELLECTUAL ADVENTURE

Director(s): Bruno OLIVIERO

Writer(s): Adila BENEDJAÏ-ZOU, Bruno OLIVIERO

Louis Althusser, a French philosopher, Communist and professor, was one of the most influential leftist thinkers of the 20th century. Friends and former students tell of his renewed approach of Marxist theories after the revelations of Stalinist crimes in the Khrushchev report. A victim of mental illness, he strangled his wife in a fit of madness.
Documentary based partially on the only filmed interview given by Louis Althusser in 1980 in Rome.

THE PRESS:

"Remarkable... Books, history, philosophy, personal life, mental illness, positions and influences... Nothing is forgotten in this portrait." --Télérama

"It's a rare thing that television dedicates a documentary to a philosopher. It is even rarer that TV produces a documentary dedicated to a Marxist philosopher ... ALTHUSSER is, in fact, less of a documentary on Althusser than it is a radiography of the "Althusser effect." --Article Regard

"Fascinating portrait of a Marxist philosopher who, before succumbing to mental illness, developed a vision that is now being revisited by those who challenge capitalism." --Philippe Sollers

"A remarkable film that paints in sharp brush strokes ... the intellectual journey of philosopher Louis Althusser." --France Inter (Radio)
