

BASAHAIDEAK - WILD MELODIES

Director(s): Elsa OLIARJ-INES

Writer(s): Elsa OLIARJ-INES, Oihan OLIARJ-INES

To the backdrop of the beautiful landscapes of the Soule province in the French Basque country, Elsa Oliarj-Inès introduces us to the culture of its ancient songs.
Her brother Oihan, a young musician, works on the idea of adapting a modern instrumental accompaniment to these time-honoured melodies. The songs are performed by the women and men from the Soule province who tell us of their enduring love for the Basque culture, their music and the area's splendid nature.

During FIPA, audiovisual students from Bayonne-Biarritz expressed their views:
"... a musical documentary full of encounters, pride in traditions, love and questioning, of wild and magnificent landscapes ... And above all, it is an encounter with voices presented by Elsa and Oihan Oliarj-Inès, and magnificent voices they are! Thist is first and foremost a film to be listened to, then there are the images that express the strong relationship between these Basque singers and their land ... " Myrtille Arurault
